

CAR OF FURS HIJACKED IN DAYLIGHT AT GOLDEN ARROW DINER, LINCOLN HIGHWAY; THUGS MAKE OFF WITH GOODS VALUED AT $11,000; TRANSFER MADE ON TREVOSE ROAD

Two New York Salesmen Accosted As They Are Ready To Drive Off from In Front of Diner, Revolver Being Pressed Against Ribs of One As He Emerges from Dining Place — En Route to Sales Display in Phila.

In broad daylight, and within sight of three diner employees and their customers, also within view of any passerby on the Lincoln Highway at that hour, a passenger car loaded with furs was hijacked at the Golden Arrow Diner, Lincoln Highway, near the Roosevelt Boulevard, Bensalem Township, yesterday at three p. m.

The two men who staged the hold-up made off with $11,000 in furs, plus a watch belonging to one of the victims, state police at Langhorne barracks report.

The victims are Paul Simon, 41, of W. 30th street, New York, N. Y.; and Norman Cohen, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The police say that Simon and Cohen were enroute along the highway when they stopped at the diner. Cohen ate while Simon remained in the car with the furs; then Simon ate while Cohen stood guard. As Simon left the diner, a man approached him, stuck a revolver in his ribs and ordered Simon into the front seat of the car in which the furs were located. As the thug took his seat in the rear with the boxes of furs, he is said to have ordered Simon, who was at the wheel, to drive out Trevoise road. When the machine had proceeded about two blocks, a halt was called, and a car drove alongside. The thug, aided by his pal in the other car, transferred the boxes of furs to the second machine, described as an old black sedan. The two then made off with the furs, it is claimed.

Police stated this morning that Cohen and Simon are listed on their records as fur salesmen, but that the two operate their own business. The watch of one of the victims was also stolen.

In the diner at the time were Miss Dorothy Leinauer, Galloway road, Bensalem township, a waitress; George Gillis and William Persing, both of Philadelphia, employees at the diner; also a few customers, states the owner, Emidio Clotti. Clotti was not there at the time. Little information could be given by diner employees, although it is stated there were a few customers in the place. Said Clotti: "Dorothy told me that a customer who had been in the diner, left, and that a colored man got in the car with him."

Cohen and Simon were said to be bound for a sales display in Philadelphia. The furs were said to be inclusive of Persian lamb and mink coats, also stone marten scarfs.

The victims were unable to give much of a description of the driver of the second car, although they state that the one who rode in the machine wore a white shirt and dark slacks.

Far From Home

(By "The Stroller")
Individuals traversing Jefferson avenue, between Canal street and the canal, are not surprised to see occasional stray dogs or cats, or perhaps a pigeon once in a while, but Assistant Fire Chief William Murray had the surprise of his life a few days ago.

While driving along that stretch of street in his car, he was forced to come to a full stop for a flock of ducks—possibly 25 of the domestic type.

"How they would get out there and where such a large flock came from is beyond me," he pondered after the "quacks" took their own sweet time getting out of the path of vehicular traffic.

SHADY HOLLOW CAMP CONCLUDES SEASON

8 Jam-Packed Days Enjoyed By 72 Girls Along The Delaware

VARIETY OF ACTIVITY

Should you see a Girl Scout proudly wearing a "bug-house" on a ribbon around her neck, you will be safe in guessing she has just concluded a happy season at "Shady Hollow Camp" on the Rohm & Haas property along the Delaware river.

Ten-to-one there will be a bug in the "cage"—possibly a daddy-long-legs, maybe a fire-fly or a beetle of some sort. If you're lucky you may see a "double-decker apartment" type of "bug-house."

"Shady Hollow Camp" meant eight jam-packed days of activity and fun for about 72 girls, the average attendance being 65. By buses and by private cars they made their way to the camp-site, in a shady woodland overlooking the Delaware, west of the Burlington-Bristol bridge. Final camping session was held yesterday.

Each girl would arrive at camp with her "sit-upon" filled with camping equipment. Once the food, the project material, and possibly a sweater were removed from these utility bags which are made of oilcloth lined with wool yarn, the bag could be filled with grass or leaves for a convenient bag that means all that the name implies—something for the owner to "sit-upon."

The intermediates, upon arrival at camp, would hurry to the "Cheery Cherokee" and "Merry Scouts" sites; while the Brownies made their way to "Little Camp" or "Cherry Island." This is the first year for camp at the Rohm & Haas property, and the four units included Scouting groups from Bristol borough and Bristol township.

The craft work and the "cook-outs" were among the main interests of the girls. Not only the girls, but their leaders, were most enthusiastic about the "buddy burners," fired by coiled card-board impregnated with wax from candle ends. Placed over this was a tin container of six pound capacity, this having holes cut at strategic spots to let in air. Of course the

IS THE JOKE ON YOU?

There was quite a bit of subdued snickering in Washington recently over a group of innocents, custodians of a church fund, who were talked into turning over many thousands of dollars of other people's money to a plausible swindler.

The inevitable comparison was made with the old-time stories of yokels who "bought" the Brooklyn Bridge. No doubt it really is funny to read about how these gullible persons were sold with the idea of bribing government officials so as to have an inside track on buying government buildings when they are abandoned in the dispersal of the national government.

As a story, the yarn is quite on a par with the famous tale of the Queen's Necklace over in France—the historic swindle for which Marie Antoinette got the blame, and which contributed a great deal towards starting the French Revolution. Dumas and many other noted writers have taken a fling at the French swindle, and possibly Hollywood, the TV, etc., will use the recent Washington hocus-pocus as material for plays.

But whom is the joke on? Is it on these poor misguided souls who became convinced that they could bribe agents of the national government into selling million-dollar public buildings for a fraction of their worth?

Is the joke on President Truman and his Pendergast cronies whose faces can't help but red when they read about how easily these church people thought they could be bribed?

Or is the joke on YOU, as a taxpayer and citizen, whose public affairs are being so outrageously mismanaged that anyone could make the mistake of thinking the way to do business with your national government is to hunt up a fixer and slip him a wad of unmarked bills?

Does President Truman realize how much of the blame for this recent swindle lies upon his own shoulders?

He is the president, the nation's chief executive, the man who sets the tune by which all other Federal officials march. If the staff is so notoriously crooked that just plain people assume "anything goes," is that a reflection on the plain people—or on the officials in the national government?

President Truman has been finding excuses for, and shielding from investigations, one set of crooks or another ever since he came to office.

He rose up in the Senate some years ago to defend the founder of the Pendergast political machine which had sent him to Washington (with 50,000 fraudulent votes cast on the strength of names copied from tombstones) and he has never ceased persecuting the public official who uncovered the Pendergast scandals and sent their author to prison.

Over and again, times without number, he has indignantly defended his public associates, violently assailed their critics.

GIVEN THREE AWARDS FOR SAFETY RECORD

Employees of Penn Salt Make Outstanding 3-Year Record

WORKERS EXTOLLED

(Special to Courier)

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Aug. 2 — A perfect safety record for the year 1950 received recognition today with the presentation of three safety awards to the employees of the Cornwells Heights plant of the Pennsylvania Salt Manufacturing Co.

Acting on behalf of all plant employees, Arthur Redmond, President of Local 12335, District 50, UMW, and Joseph Rachubinski, Plant Steward of Local 476, AFL, received from William F. Mitchell, vice president in charge of manufacturing, the following awards:

National Safety Council Plaque for maintaining a perfect record in the National Safety Council Contest; Certificate of Achievement from the Manufacturing Chemists Association, Inc.; and the Perfect Record Plaque.

The latter award is sponsored by Pennsalt President, George B. Beitzel, in recognition of perfect safety records among company units. Since 1950 represents the second successive year of no lost time accidents at Cornwells Heights, the award will be retained permanently at the plant.

In complimenting the workers on their safety accomplishment, Mr. Mitchell called attention to the fact that there has been no lost time due to accident at this plant for almost three successive years, or a total of 361,708 man hours. This in the face of an alarming increase in the accident rate in American industry.

"The record shows," he stated, "that you understand one of the fundamental things about safety—that it is not a personal thing. One does not obtain this kind of safety just looking out for himself. He must also develop the habit—and you seem to have done so—of thinking safety for everyone. When this is done, then there exists an efficient working safety team."

"But you are not and cannot be the whole team," he continued, "your safety is my job, too, and the job of every person who has anything to do with this plant. That includes engineers designing equipment and installations; the superintendent and process supervisors; purchasing agents who buy equipment and supplies; and the personnel department who must carefully screen those prospective employees that might not be good safety risks."

"In other words, we are demonstrating that safety can become a habit and that the lost time accident need be neither expected nor accepted."

PEACE TALKS

By Howard Handelman

Far Eastern Director INS

UN TRUCE CAMP NEAR KAESONG, Aug. 2 — (INS) — The

Allies directly warned the communists across the Kaesong conference table today that they will never accept a Korean truce line which would be "indefensible" in case of "an armistice violation by the otherside."

Despite this blunt face-to-face warning, the Red delegates refused for a seventh straight day to abandon their demand for a cease-fire buffer zone straddling Parallel 38, artificial political border between North and South Korea.

Some observers at the United Nations truce camp below Kaesong expressed fear the armistice parley was nearing a possible breakdown. Others speculated that the Red delegation is stalling for time while awaiting new orders from Pyongyang, Peking and Moscow.

HOW MANY MARINES?

How large a Marine Corps? That question, plus the matter of equal representation on the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has touched off another controversy in which formidable congressional forces are aligned against administration policy.

A House bill, approved in committee, would give the Marines a minimum of 300,000 men, with equal representation on the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The Senate already has voted a maximum of 400,000, with the Marines to have a "consultant" status with the Joint Chiefs. At present the Marines number 192,000, approximately 10,000 short of authorized strength, and have no policy voice other than the Navy's.

General Cates, Marine Corps commandant, approves this attitude in Congress. It is opposed by Defense Secretary Marshall and by the Joint Chiefs.

If President Truman listens to his professional military advisers—as he is expected to do—he will veto this radical change in Marine Corps status. In that event, its congressional proponents are confident they have the votes to override.

Against the expansion it is argued, among other things, that the Marine Corps would become a "second army"—that it would lose the esprit de corps that has made the Marines a truly elite organization. There is cited General Cates' own statement that, starting in August, the Marines will be forced to resort to the draft to reach even their present authorized strength of 204,300.

But pro-Marine spokesmen recall that in World War II the Marine Corps not only used the draft but it also numbered more than 450,000, with no detectable decline in spirit or effectiveness. Also, they maintain that the Marines are specially trained for highly specialized missions—amphibious and otherwise.

Nothing but these and other highly technical considerations should influence the final decision, whatever it is. This is not a matter for interservice jealousy. Neither should it be affected by the well-deserved emotional appeal of the gallant Marines. Least of all is it an issue upon which armchair strategists are qualified to render a verdict.

girls made certain the "stove" top was clean before they commenced cooking on it. One of their favorite meals included bacon cooked first to make a greasy surface. On this was then laid a piece of bread to toast. A hole, torn in the center of the slice, made a convenient spot in which to drop an egg—and with the can heating instantaneously—presto, there was a meal in no time. Another type of cookery at which the girls became past masters was the making of "dough-sticks". Water would be poured in a box of ready-mix biscuit preparation, a clean stick would be twirled in the mixture which would in turn be held over the fire. When, after a few minutes, the "dough-stick" would be baked, it would readily pull off the stick, and the hole filled with jelly. Aluminum foil cookery was popular; and the girls also enjoyed making mulligan stew and chili con carne.

Mrs. Edward Priestly was co-director of the camp; nurses were Mrs. Fred Veigel, Mrs. Frank Fuoco, and Mrs. Charles W. Poston; unit leaders were: Mrs. John Burtonwood, Mrs. Herman Stueb-ing, Mrs. Kenneth Davis, Mrs. Ed-wood Bilger, Mrs. Robert MacDon-ald, Mrs. Wendell Bracken, Mrs. William Barkasy, Mrs. John Peters, Mrs. Arthur Kentzler, Mrs. Fred Stewart, Jr., Mrs. Thomas Hanford.

This group of leaders directed a party Monday evening at the camp, and some of the girls served refreshments.

Harking back to the "bug-houses", the girls used corks for such, cutting off a cross section, and fastening the two portions together with a series of straight pins. When a bug was caught, one or two pins would be pulled back to make an opening, then the pin "door" closed, with the bug safely inside.

Another project was that of the terrariums, filled with mosses, grass, shells, etc. Some used broad pickle jars, building the garden on top of it, then screwing the glass on top of it. Others built miniature gardens on glass coasters, covering them with cheese glasses. "You put charcoal and sand in the bottom to keep the garden sweet" volunteered one Brownie. The girls had nothing but admiring glances for one made by a leader who used a glass rolling pin.

Basketry included the making of vase-type containers, and flat baskets to hold flowers or cookies. "Potato printing" was a unique type of art that resulted in leaf designs transferred from cut potatoes onto handkerchiefs, scarfs, etc. A green leaf would be used as a pattern, the potato cut in half, and the "pattern" remaining on the raised surface portion. Printers ink would be diluted with turpentine, and the design transferred to the cloth. Lines about camp-sites would be filled with drying items on "printing days". Ozalid printing was also popular, patterns on photographic paper being exposed to the sun, then developed with ammonia fumes. Splatter prints were also made by many girls. Also popular were smoke and ink pad prints.

Wood-craft results in coat hangers, and peg-type of hangers which would be lashed to trees with twine. Small limbs and twigs were brought into use as the girls made work tables, also tripods for their wash-basins.

The youngsters have kept busy making plaster of Paris pins in soufflé cups, these being painted, and safety pins mounted on the back of same. On some the names of the girls would be super-imposed with macaroni letters. Some pins were the result of inch-diameter limbs being cut in cross-sections, and artificially painted. Wall plaques were made of the plaster of Paris. This material was also used in the bottom of the larger type of "bug-houses" which some girls constructed. In these were placed twigs on which the bugs could walk, while surrounded by a circular wall of wire mesh. Intermediates enjoyed transforma-ing pieces of copper into brace-lets, name of each being applied with asphalt varnish. Practically every girl carried home a "weather-vane"—a picture which had on it a portion of blot-ting paper, chemically treated to change color with weather changes. One would be a picture of a house, with the blotting paper for the chimney; on another the blotting paper would form the flames of a fire or a cloud in the sky. The girls spent much time im-proving their camp-site, including the outlining of the paths between the unit sites and also to the flag-pole with stones. During the camp stay each girl was credited on index record cards for activities toward badge work such as camp-craft, nature, drama-tics, backyard camping, etc. Michael Puchino and daughter Lillian, of Wilson street and Miss Alberta Williamson, Croydon, spent Sunday at Bainbridge, Md., visit-ing Richard Puchino, P.O. 1/c who is stationed there.

Is The Joke On You?

and then been forced reluctantly to take action when it became obvious that something was amiss.

When first criticism of the RFC was heard, Mr. Truman blew his top with indignation. But it now appears that the head of the Democratic National Committee, as well as an employee right inside the White House, were somehow mixed up in the sale of favors and influence which went on in that agency.

More and more, public business at Washington goes by fear and favor. It is no longer a question of right and wrong, but of "what can we get away with."

Only a few days ago a high military official, head of a tank arsenal at Detroit, was fired from his command for taking gifts from contractors. When he was on the witness stand, the general in question had brazenly testified that he saw nothing wrong in accepting these gifts—accepting hotel accommodations and a boat keel from the men with whom he was doing business as the representative of the American people in the disbursement of their tax revenues.

When his superiors looked at the record, however, they hastily took him off the job.

If the future of this episode follows the pattern set in previous cases along somewhat similar lines, the general will receive a polite slap-on-the-wrist as official punishment, and later will be showered with decorations and promotions to make up for whatever embarrassment has been caused him.

This business of promoting army officials who are exposed by Congress has been one of the minor scandals in Washington.

At any event, it was your money and your government that got kicked around.

If there is any joke involved, then YOU are the one the joke is on!

SUMMER TRACK MEET
TO BE STAGED TONIGHT

The first annual Lower Bucks County Amateur Summer Track Meet will be held this evening starting at 6:15 o'clock on the George School track. The affair is being sponsored by the Pennell Athletic Club.

The meet is open to all lower Bucks county amateur trackmen, either high school, high school graduates, or college students. Ribbons will be given as prizes.

The events to be held are: high jump, broad jump, shot-put, 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard dash, 880 yard run, one mile relay and 120-yard hurdles. The latter event is pending on the number of entries.

Those in charge of the events are William McMath, of Langhorne, and Thomas Snipes, of Morrisville.

Lumber is truly an American word, originating in Boston.

HOW MANY MARINES?

How large a Marine Corps? That question, plus the matter of equal representation on the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has touched off another controversy in which formidable congressional forces are aligned against administration policy.

A House bill, approved in committee, would give the Marines a minimum of 300,000 men, with equal representation on the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The Senate already has voted a maximum of 400,000, with the Marines to have a "consultant" status with the Joint Chiefs. At present the Marines number 192,000, approximately 10,000 short of authorized strength, and have no policy voice other than the Navy's.

General Cates, Marine Corps commandant, approves this attitude in Congress. It is opposed by Defense Secretary Marshall and by the Joint Chiefs.

If President Truman listens to his professional military advisers—as he is expected to do—he will veto this radical change in Marine Corps status. In that event, its congressional proponents are confident they have the votes to override.

Against the expansion it is argued, among other things, that the Marine Corps would become a "second army"—that it would lose the esprit de corps that has made the Marines a truly elite organization. There is cited General Cates' own statement that, starting in August, the Marines will be forced to resort to the draft to reach even their present authorized strength of 204,300.

But pro-Marine spokesmen recall that in World War II the Marine Corps not only used the draft but it also numbered more than 450,000, with no detectable decline in spirit or effectiveness. Also, they maintain that the Marines are specially trained for highly specialized missions—amphibious and otherwise.

Nothing but these and other highly technical considerations should influence the final decision, whatever it is. This is not a matter for interservice jealousy. Neither should it be affected by the well-deserved emotional appeal of the gallant Marines. Least of all is it an issue upon which armchair strategists are qualified to render a verdict.

Kansas, former home of the dust bowl, has been plagued by floods all spring and summer. Kansas weather cannot be accused of being set in its ways.

Girls made certain the "stove" top was clean before they commenced cooking on it. One of their favorite meals included bacon cooked first to make a greasy surface. On this was then laid a piece of bread to toast. A hole, torn in the center of the slice, made a convenient spot in which to drop an egg—and with the can heating instantaneously—presto, there was a meal in no time. Another type of cookery at which the girls became past masters was the making of "dough-sticks". Water would be poured in a box of ready-mix biscuit preparation, a clean stick would be twirled in the mixture which would in turn be held over the fire. When, after a few minutes, the "dough-stick" would be baked, it would readily pull off the stick, and the hole filled with jelly. Aluminum foil cookery was popular; and the girls also enjoyed making mulligan stew and chili con carne.

Mrs. Edward Priestly was co-director of the camp; nurses were Mrs. Fred Veigel, Mrs. Frank Pucio, and Mrs. Charles W. Poston; unit leaders were: Mrs. John Burtonwood, Mrs. Herman Stuebing, Mrs. Kenneth Davis, Mrs. Elwood Bilger, Mrs. Robert MacDonaid, Mrs. Wendell Bracken, Mrs. William Barkasy, Mrs. John Peters, Mrs. Arthur Kentzler, Mrs. Fred Stewart, Jr., Mrs. Thomas Hanford.

This group of leaders directed a party Monday evening at the camp, and some of the girls served refreshments.

Harking back to the "bug-houses", the girls used corks for such, cutting off a cross section, and fastening the two portions together with a series of straight pins. When a bug was caught, one or two pins would be pulled back to make an opening, then the pin "door" closed, with the bug safely inside.

Another project was that of the terrariums, filled with mosses, grass, shells, etc. Some used broad pickle jars, building the garden on top of it. Others built miniature gardens on glass coasters, covering them with cheese glasses. "You put charcoal and sand in the bottom to keep the garden sweet" volunteered one Brownie. The girls had nothing but admiring glances for one made by a leader who used a glass rolling pin.

Basketry included the making of vase-type containers, and flat baskets to hold flowers or cookies. "Potato printing" was a unique type of art that resulted in leaf designs transferred from cut potatoes onto handkerchiefs, scarfs, etc. A green leaf would be used as a pattern, the potato cut in half, and the "pattern" remaining on the raised surface portion. Printers ink would be diluted with turpentine, and the design transferred to the cloth. Lines about camp-sites would be filled with drying items on "printing days". Ozalid printing was also popular, patterns on photographic paper being exposed to the sun, then developed with ammonia fumes. Splatter prints were also made by many girls. Also popular were smoke and ink pad prints.

Wood-craft results in coat hangers, and peg-type of hangers which would be lashed to trees with twine. Small limbs and twigs were brought into use as the girls made work tables, also tripods for their wash-basins.

The youngsters have kept busy making plaster of Paris pins in souffle cups, these being painted, and safety pins mounted on the back of same. On some the names of the girls would be superimposed with macaroni letters. Some pins were the result of inch-diameter limbs being cut in cross-sections, and artificially painted. Wall plaques were made of the plaster of Paris. This material was also used in the bottom of the larger type of "bug-houses" which some girls constructed. In these were placed twigs on which the bugs could walk, while surrounded by a circular wall of wire mesh. Intermediates enjoyed transforming pieces of copper into brace-lets, name of each being applied with asphalt varnish.

Practically every girl carried home a "weather-vane"—a picture which had on it a portion of blotting paper, chemically treated to change color with weather changes. One would be a picture of a house, with the blotting paper for the chimney; on another the blotting paper would form the flames of a fire or a cloud in the sky.

The girls spent much time improving their camp-site, including the outlining of the paths between the unit sites and also to the flag-pole with stones.

During the camp stay each girl was credited on index record cards for activities toward badge work, such as camp-craft, nature, dramatics, backyard camping, etc.

When first criticism of the RFC was heard, Mr. Truman blew his top with indignation. But it now appears that the head of the Democratic National Committee, as well as an employee right inside the White House, were somehow mixed up in the sale of favors and influence which went on in that agency.

More and more, public business at Washington goes by fear and favor. It is no longer a question of right and wrong, but of "what can we get away with."

Only a few days ago a high military official, head of a tank arsenal at Detroit, was fired from his command for taking gifts from contractors. When he was on the witness stand, the general in question had brazenly testified that he saw nothing wrong in accepting these gifts—accepting hotel accommodations and a boat keel from the men with whom he was doing business as the representative of the American people in the disbursement of their tax revenues.

When his superiors looked at the record, however, they hastily took him off the job.

If the future of this episode follows the pattern set in previous cases along somewhat similar lines, the general will receive a polite slap-on-the-wrist as official punishment, and later will be showered with decorations and promotions to make up for whatever embarrassment has been caused him.

This business of promoting army officials who are exposed by Congress has been one of the minor scandals in Washington.

At any event, it was your money and your government that got kicked around.

If there is any joke involved, then YOU are the one the joke is on!

SUMMER TRACK MEET
TO BE STAGED TONIGHT

The first annual Lower Bucks County Amateur Summer Track Meet will be held this evening starting at 6:15 o'clock on the George School track. The affair is being sponsored by the Pennell Athletic Club.

Track officials stated last night that entries from the Bristol area will be received at the track. Four boys from Bristol have entered, they being: Bill Gilles, Bill Brady, Andy Kondyra and Andy Gall. There are also entries from Morrisville, Pennsbury, Newtown, Pennell and Langhorne.

The meet is open to all lower Bucks county amateur trackmen, either high school, high school graduates, or college students. Ribbons will be given as prizes.

The events to be held are: high jump, broad jump, shot-put, 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard dash, 880 yard run, one mile relay and 120-yard hurdles. The latter event is pending on the number of entries.

Those in charge of the events are William McMath, of Langhorne, and Thomas Snipes, of Morrisville.

Lumber is truly an American word, originating in Boston.

Name Two Men To Guide Activities of Workers Group

Mr. Wilson as chairman of Division 11 will be responsible for some 36 companies which have from 20 to 99 employees.

Both Mr. Lewis and Mr. Wilson expressed the hope that a payroll deduction or deferred payment plan would be made available in every company so that each of the area's 12,000 workers could pledge his share in the community-wide effort for the new hospital.

"This is the first capital fund appeal for a hospital in the history of lower Bucks County," Mr. Lewis stated. "It is a once in a lifetime proposition," he added, "and only through some sort of deferred payment plan can the average person make a large enough subscription to build the hospital so badly needed in our area."

Mr. Wilson pointed out that as the largest group in the community, wage earners and their families would benefit more than anyone else by the new hospital. "I am confident," he said, "that each employee will want to do his share in helping to provide new hospital facilities for himself and his family."

Mr. Harris indicated that the solicitation of employees would precede the residential solicitation and that each employee would receive a window sticker after making his subscription. He expressed his thanks to the United Labor Hospital Committee led by Frank Flatch and Rene Trischler for their support of the hospital program. "I feel sure," he stated, "that with management and labor working together in each plant in this joint community endeavor, we will be assured of success in meeting our area's greatest need."

Mr. Lewis announced that plans for solicitation had already been completed at the Rohm and Haas Company and the Superior Zinc Corporation.

The Rohm and Haas employees have set for themselves an objective of $108,000 to establish the entire pediatric department in the new hospital. Leaders in the plant campaign there include W. B. McCluer, Plant Manager; James C. Stretch, Office Manager and Martin E. Judge and John H. Spadacino.

officers of local 88, Federation of Glass, Ceramic and Silica Sand Workers of America, C.I.O. All expressed confidence that the employees would exceed their self-imposed goal.

The Superior Zinc employee solicitation is led by Thomas R. Jones, Vice President and Earl Ross, President of local 4350, United Steel Workers of America C.I.O., and the plant objective has been set at $5,400 to dedicate a nurses' station on the hospital's first floor.

The Employee Division is the fourth group to be activated in the present campaign. Already in action are the Doctors' Committee, led by Thomas S. Fannin, M.D., the Memorial Committee under Chairman C. Burnley White and the Corporation Committee headed by T. R. Jones and W. B. McCluer.

The first American lumber mill was established in 1608.
